STARTLING RUMOR

OF THE MURDER OF A FORMER EAST LIVERPOOL MAN.

Stranger Claimed That William Frank Had Been Assassinated.

A report was circulated last night by a stranger, whose identity could not be learned, to the effect that William Frank, who recently conducted a bar room in Diamond alley, had been murdered in Syracuse, N. Y. Other rumors also gained ground that Frank had been killed in Weston, W. Va., in which city he is now thought to be.

It could not be learned where the stranger secured his information, and little credence was given the report. William Handsome, who left this city with Robinson's circus, claims to have met Frank in Weston about two weeks ago, and says that he was working there.

A telegram sent this morning to police headquarters at Syracuse failed to substantiate the story. Charles R. Wright, chief of the police of that city, forwarded the following message: "William Frank unknown; all dead men accounted for."

The chief of police of Weston wired this afternoon: "William Frank is here, alive and well."

FELL IN A WELL

JAMES DIXON, OF THIS CITY, DISLOCATED A SHOULDER.

Rope He Was Descending Broke, Giving Him a Terrible Fall Yesterday.

James Dixon, of this city, met with an accident yesterday afternoon which nearly cost his life.

Dixon was engaged in cleaning out a well on the Gaston farm, near Calcutta, and was descending down a rope which parted when he was seven feet from the top, causing him to drop a distance of 28 feet. He alighted on his right side, dislocating his shoulder and wrist. He was assisted out of the well by one of the farm hands and his injuries dressed, and although very today, he is able to be around.

ELECTED OFFICERS

East Liverpool Ladies Among Those Chosen By the Home Missionary Society.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Steubenville presbytery has just closed its sessions at Dennisson.

Officers elected were: President, Mrs. C. J. Hunter, Uhrichsville; president ex-officio, Mrs. Rev. R. White, Washington, D. C.; vice presidents, Mrs. R. T. Price, Scio; Mrs. T. J. Gray, Inverness; Mrs. W. B. Donaldson, Steubenville; Mrs. R. R. McKinley, Steubenville; Mrs. L. J. Laverty, Wellsville; Mrs. C. L. Wekel, East Liverpool; Mrs. W. M. Grimes, Steubenville; corresponding secretary, Mrs. William Bullock, Steubenville; assistant, Miss Addie Noble, Wellsville; treasurer, Mrs. E. R. BUSINESS MEN WERE TAKEN IN

Cleverly Duped By a Smooth-Tongued Stranger's Big Talk.

HAD TO FOOT HIS BILLS

He Professed to Be Negotiating for a Site for a Big Mill—Those Who Met Him Now Regret Making His Acquaintance.

According to a report which is current among real estate men the individual who was in East Liverpool a few days since, giving his name as E. J. Brooks and claiming to represent a Massachusetts manufacturing company, is an impostor and schemer and came here for the purpose of working his game.

That he succeeded in his motive is evidenced by the fact that several of the local speculators who had the "capitalist" in tow during his stay in this city are several dollars short and wondering how it came about that they were so easily taken in.

It will be remembered that Brooks entered into negotiations for the purchase of 50 acres of land in the East End. It was the owners of the property who entertained the gentleman during his visit here. He was a very agreeable sort of fellow and his victims had little trouble in dealing with him. He seemed so very much taken up with the bargain he was offered that he stated he felt disposed to pay down the ready cash and close the deal at once. However, he explained he would have to take the proposition before the others connected with the company, but made known the fact that the bargain would be closed as soon as he could consult his partners and return to the city.

Brooks was in East Liverpool several days, and during all of that time he was entertained in royal style at the expense of his unsuspecting victims. Ten-cent cigars were not good enough for the "capitalists," and he was kept well supplied with Havanas of the best grade. His appetite was well looked after also, and an occasional nip of champagne was not at all objected to by the "financier."

After Mr. Brooks had accepted of the hospitalities of his entertainers until he had become ashamed of himself, he made known the fact that he was anxious to report his success in the deal made here to the other members of the company. On taking his departure the gentleman was accompanied to the train by his innocent dupes, who gave him the glad hand and sent him on his way rejoicing.

It was previously agreed by Mr. Brooks that he would wire the outcome of his conference with his partners immediately on his return to his home city. Whether the wire he proposed using has become disabled or retired is not known, but it is positively known that Mr. Brooks has not yet sent the much desired message. Since his departure it has become rumored that he forgot to pay his hotel bill in this city.

Although the men who Mr. Brooks victimized refuse to talk of the affair, it is known they are now fully aware that they were bunkoed. Where the man came from or who he is has not been learned, but it is evident he is a clever schemer and does not have to depend on the sweat of his brow for his daily bread.

HORSE CAUSED TROUBLE

A Trade That Resulted Disastrously for Daniel Davis Made Sport for Others.

Daniel Davis yesterday traded a horse owned by him to John Allen, giving $5 additional for another one possessed by the latter. Davis hitched his newly acquired beast to a buckboard and started down Market street. When he reached Fourth street the animal balked and in spite of the efforts of the driver to urge it forward, it straightened out its fore legs and stood rigid.

The whip was applied, but without effect, and the driver then undertook to lead the beast. He failed to accomplish anything, and as he gave vent to his temper in cloudy epithets the crowd which had gathered about the scene laughed uproariously. The stubborn brute was finally conquered and gotten off the street.

CHAMBERLAIN AWARDED $233

Successful in His Damage Suit Against the City of East Liverpool.

A DIVORCE WAS GRANTED

To Mrs. Walter Burrows Who Claims Her Life Was in Danger—Husband Gets His Furniture—Interesting Suit Over Notes.

Lisbon, June 8.—(Special)—The jury in the case of Jesse J. Chamberlain against the city of East Liverpool, tried yesterday, returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $233. Chamberlain asked $326.

The jury was excused from further duty until next Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Sarah E. Burrows, of East Liverpool, was granted a divorce this morning from Walter Burrows. Contrary to the usual custom, Burrows contested the case and was given alimony in the shape of the furniture in the room he occupies in his wife's home. The couple were married in May, 1876, in North Malvern parish, Worcester county, England, and have two children. Burrows, it is alleged, has been habitually drunk and has made a practice of beating his wife and has frequently threatened to kill her. In August, 1899, it is stated, he terrified her by shooting himself in the head, in an attempt at suicide. Mrs. Burrows recently inherited some money from relatives in England and Burrows wanted a share.

W. S. Potts, administrator of the estate of the late John Matthews, filed an action today, and Judge Hole granted a temporary restraining order, which will keep Sylvester P. Dow from cutting and disposing of valuable timber on land owned by the estate in Hanover township.

Prior to September, 1900, Mary J. Matthews, the widow of John, sold Dow 326 acres of land, reserving only the right of way of the C. & P. railroad. He paid her $3,750 and gave her in addition two notes, each calling for $5,625, due in one and two years. The interest now due is $675.

Owing to the depreciation of real estate in Hanover township and the failure of the defendant to keep the fences in repair the land is said not to be worth over $12,000. Hence the injunction to keep Dow from cutting and disposing of the timber.

PARROTT AGAIN TO FRONT

Wants to Sell Library Directors a Book of His Authorship on Game Chickens.

A communication to John Horton Parrott, the alleged architect, who has for several weeks been harassing the directors of the Carnegie library, informing him that the plans he submitted had arrived too late and that the building was in course of construction, was sent to the individual in the hope that he would cease further correspondence.

Since Parrott has learned for a certainty that the building is to be built he has evidenced a determination to become identified with it in some way, and has sent a circular to the directors descriptive of a book of his authorship on "The Anatomy and Structural Peculiarities of the Game Fowl," which he believes would be a valuable acquisition to the library's literature.

The circular states that "the work will be largely devoted to the elucidation of the main idea concerning the game fowl and its characteristic peculiarities in the best form of development. It will accurately describe the bony structure and the muscular integuments of the game cock."

It has not yet been decided how many copies of the book will be ordered for the library.

IN AID OF EXECUTION

A Suit Is Filed in Justice McCarron's Court—Another Action for Money.

An affidavit in aid of execution was filed against James McHenry in Justice McCarron's court yesterday afternoon, by Mary Zook, Lizzie Sheets and William Zook, the surviving heirs of A. Zook, deceased. Last October the plaintiffs in the case procured a judgment against McHenry for $30, which amount was claimed for labor performed by A. Zook previous to his death. The case now brought is to recover the amount of the judgment. It will be heard next Wednesday.

HIS SAFE WAS BLOWN OPEN AND $400 IN COIN TAKEN

John Wines, a minor, by his father, John Wines, Sr., brought suit yesterday in the court of Justice McCarron against Ed McHenry for $8.50. Young Wines worked for McHenry and claims the sum above designated is due him. It is thought the case will be settled without trial, as the defendant confesses judgment and has agreed to pay the amount.

BOARD OF HEALTH

DISCUSSED THE SEWER QUESTION AT ITS MEETING.

Resolutions to Be Presented to Council at Its Next Session.

The board of health met last night at city hall, all members being present, excepting Messrs. Nellis and Haines. Dr. T. H. Birkett, who was appointed a member of the board to succeed J. C. Kerr, was sworn into office by Mayor Davidson.

Health Officer Ogden submitted his report for the month of May. The births were 17 male and 18 females, while the deaths were five males and nine females. Seven cases of typhoid and one of scarlet fever were reported during the month.

A discussion of the sewer question was brought up with the result that the clerk, J. T. Herbert, was instructed to draw up resolutions in conjunction with the city solicitor to be presented to council at the next meeting, asking that sewers be put down in Trentvale street, Pleasant street, Green lane, Calcutta road and along the Horn switch; also that the sewer on Sheridan avenue be extended and that Lake's run in the East End be piped and covered over.

RIVER RISING

Coal Shipping Stage Expected—Gallagher Shanty Boat Gone.

The river commenced to raise last night and the marks at the wharf this morning registered 14 feet. Ten feet of water is expected at Pittsburgh, making more shipments of coal possible.

The Virginia passed up and the Greenwood down last night. The Virginia and Lorena will go down tonight.

The steamer Venice, owned by Ed Schneider, came to the city this morning and took the Oregon, the boat which was occupied by Charles Gallagher and which is owned by Mr. Schneider, to Verona, Pa., where it will be used for a boarding house.

FIENDS AND VISITORS

E. W. Johnson has returned to his home in North Baltimore after a visit with relatives here.

Prof. S. A. Harbout, who for the past four years has been superintendent of the schools of Toronto, has been elected superintendent of the schools of New Waterford.

J. A. Davis and mother, of Marietta, are the guests of Mrs. J. W. Clark, Lincoln avenue. Mr. Davis will return home this evening, but Mrs. Davis will remain here for some time.

Jesse Bailey, an ex-policeman and a resident of Port Huron, was roused from his sleep by the rattling of a chain on his skiff. He got out and blazed away at the would-be thief, who

Among the graduates from the Northern Ohio Normal college at Canfield last week were Emily Dilidine, New Waterford; Margaret Smith, Wellsville; Joseph E. Roller, Washingtonville, and Martha Swaney, Clarkston.

The Salineville Banner is now a five column quarto, all printed in Salineville. In typographical appearance and in newness it has few superiors among Ohio weeklies. Its improvement during the past few months is most marked.

Mrs. Mary Stewart, of lower Broadway, leaves today for East Palestine for a two weeks' visit to her son, James S. Stewart, and granddaughter, Mrs. Fred Sebring. She will be accompanied by Miss Belle Stewart and Miss Georgia McLane, who will remain for a few days.

William Grim, Storekeeper, Robbed of Goods and Cash.

HE WAS NOT AWAKENED

By the Burglars Who Pursued Their Work Most Systematically.

And He Has the Dates of All the Gold Pieces—His Check Book Was Also Taken—The Thieves Evidently Not Professionals.

Wm. T. Grim, one of the best known men in Columbiana county, was robbed last night, the thieves making away with over $400 in silver and gold.

Mr. Grim has conducted a small country store at his home at historic Grim's bridge all his life, and his father before him varried on the same business.

Mr. Grim found this morning that his safe had been blown open and its contents taken, and the store stripped of valuable goods. How the thieves performed their work without awakening him is a mystery.

Usually he kept little money on hand. Of late he had been saving up for a special purpose and had not noticed particularly how fast it had accumulated. There were ten $20 gold pieces and a large number of other gold pieces of various denominations, the dates of which Mr. Grim has a memorandum and the remainder was in silver. A quantity of small change had been placed with the balance, but this was pushed to one side and left by the thieves. It is thought the gold can be recovered easily, owing to the dates having been preserved.

One peculiarity about the robbery lies in the fact that the thieves, after pilfering everything of value, had hastily taken a number of leaves from the check book. This fact is taken as proof positive that the thieves, whoever they were, are not experienced.

Mr. Grim this morning hastened to the bank in this city to acquaint the officials of the circumstances and to stop the payment of all checks which might be presented. His next move was to inform the authorities at city hall, who at once went to work on the case.

It is thought the authorities will have little trouble in apprehending the thieves.

WILL UNVEIL MONUMENT

Woodmen of the World to Pay Tribute to the Memory of the Late Charles Stevens.

The local lodge of the Woodmen of the World will unveil the monument of Charles Stevens tomorrow afternoon, at the Spring Grove cemetery. The members of the order will meet at the lodge room at 1:30 o'clock. A procession will be formed at 2 o'clock, headed by Manley's band, and will march to the cemetery.

Rev. G. H. Schlech will conduct the services at the grave. The public is asked to take part in the ceremony, as it is the desire to make the event memorable to the relatives and friends of the departed brother, and to fittingly commemorate the occasion.

PEARCE STILL AT LARGE

Officers Believe He Has Made His Escape—An Arrest Made Last Night.

The police have as yet failed to locate Robert Pearce, for whom a warrant is held by the authorities at Rochester for the alleged theft of $90. It is believed he has made his escape.

Officer Stafford last night arrested W. Black on a charge of intoxication. He was found in an alley near the city hall and locked up. This morning he was assessed $1 and costs, which he paid. This is the first time Black was ever arrested. He told the mayor he had overestimated his capacity, but that he would use better judgment in the future.

SOLDIERS DISAPPOINTED

East Liverpool Boy Who Expected to Come Home Finds He Can't.

Charles Bouton has received a letter from Cash McKinnon, who is serving in the Seventeenth United States infantry in the Philippines.

McKinnon's term of enlistment was to have expired the last of this month and he expected to return to this country at once. His regiment, however, has been ordered to the interior of the islands, and he states that he will be unable to return before next May.

He says the boys are nearly all greatly disappointed, as they were heartily tired of soldier life and anxious to get home.

EXTRACTED THE BULLET

Surgeons Perform an Operation on a Woman Accidentally Shot.

Drs. R. J. Marshall and W. M. Calhoun performed a surgical operation yesterday afternoon on Mrs. Tom Smith, of Calhoun addition. A bullet was removed from the left side of her spine near the shoulder.

It will be remembered that about a year ago Mrs. Smith was shot in the left shoulder by the accidental discharge of a rifle in the hands of her son. The bullet passed through under the flesh and lodged on the left side of the spinal bone, from where it was not removed until yesterday. Mrs. Smith is getting along nicely.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Elmer Stevenson and family will spend Sunday with friends at Sprucedale, O.

Miss Lottie Bower, of Steubenville, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Dr. W. E. Mowen.

C. H. Salyus and Albert Murray returned this morning to their home at Cattlettsburg, Ky.

William Hamilton and Ed Allison are in Pittsburgh today witnessing the National league game.

Mrs. Reese Watkins, of Lisbon, are visiting at the home of W. C. Supplee on Ohio avenue.

Wylie Burchett and Miss Gypsie Burchett, of Louisa, Ky., have arrived in the East End and will make their home at Chaffinville.

Mrs. Enos Jones, of Klondike, who underwent a severe surgical operation last Tuesday, is improving rapidly and will be able to be out in a few days.

Mrs. Hiram Beardmore, who has been visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. Martha Brown, of Railroad street, returned to her home at Salem this morning.

Buy It Now.

Do not wait until you or some of your family are sick nigh unto death, and then see for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, but buy it now and be prepared for an emergency. It is the one remedy that can always be depended upon in the most severe and dangerous cases. It is equally valuable for children and when reduced with water and sweetened is pleasant to take. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

FOR SALE—Grocery store; doing a good business; good reason for selling. Address "J." care of News Review.

Notice.

The manager of Columbian park desires to state to the public that he is now ready to make dates for the park. Picnics, private dances, horse races, bicycle races, ball games, concerts, etc.

Until further notice ladies and children under 12 years accompanied by their parents or grown persons, will be admitted free to the grove from 10:30 a. m., to 7:30 p. m., every day in the week, except days when the park is rented for picnics, races or other performances.

READING AND THINKING.

Daniel C. Gilman, formerly president of Johns Hopkins university, fears that the young people of the United States are being educated to read too much and to think too little. For this reason he would discourage the multiplication of free libraries. This is strange logic, coming from a man supposed to be versed in that science. Applying it, the professor should urge the abandonment of free schools, because some pupils injure themselves by overstudy; the destruction of gymnasiums, because some gymnasts exercise too much; the shutting up of hotels and restaurants and even the abolition of the every-day dining room and kitchen, because a great many people have the habit of eating too much.

The professor seems to desire a reform in reading habits, and there is undoubtedly need of it. But a reform can easily be too sweeping. You can get rid of tares in a wheat field by starting a prairie fire and you can rid a barn of rats by burning it. But the remedy is worse than the affliction. The reading habit is a habit to be encouraged. Of course people should read with judgment, care and discrimination, if they are to be benefited. Parents and teachers can do much toward cultivating a taste for good literature in the children under their care. But there is less danger from children spending their time over the poorest books found on public library shelves than in running wild in the streets. To say that the accumulations of good literature, embodying the works of great minds of all ages, found in all free libraries, are harmful and that the public should be kept from them in the fear that some one may suffer mental injury, is nonsense. The professor might as well advise people to stay away from church because men have been known to go crazy over religion. "Reading maketh a full man," said Lord Bacon, and wise men agree with him.

A GEORGIA MOB DEFIED.

A Georgia sheriff has prevented the lynching of a negro. Such an unusual event deserves more than passing mention. In this case, the sheriff, instead of surrendering his prisoner to the mob that clamored for his life, defended the jail with the aid of a small posse, at the risk of his own life, and defended it in such an effective way that one of the mob was killed and two others seriously injured. This unexpected activity on the part of the representatives of the law broke up the lynching party, and the decrees of the court, rather than those of lawbreakers, will be carried out in reference to the colored prisoner. All honor to Sheriff Joseph Merrill, of Carrollton! Georgia has at least one officer who stands ready to do his sworn duty. If she had more like him Georgia civilization would be of a higher type, and the nation would be spared disgrace and humiliation. For every lynching is a disgrace in a civilized land.

REMARKABLE PROSPERITY.

Prosperity brings its embarrassments, as well as its blessings. We noted a few days ago that the farmers of Kansas were advertising for 20,000 men to help them harvest the coming wheat crop. Stories of a scarcity of farm labor came from almost every section of the country. Now comes a report from Pittsburgh that building operations are seriously hampered by a scarcity of bricklayers. Although bricklayers receive $4 a day or 50 cents an hour, contractors cannot find enough of them to do the work they want done. Such a condition of affairs in the building trade has been known before, but it was confined to certain localities. Now it is general. Advertisements placed by Pittsburgers in distant cities, calling for bricklayers, bring no responses. The men have all they can do at home, for the whole country appears to be busy building and improving. In eastern cities, it is said, higher wages are being paid than in Pittsburg for this class of workmen. In other lines of industry, men are not hunting work, but work is hunting them.

A more interesting and important feature of the situation is that, as is natural under the circumstances, workingmen's bank accounts are growing and workingmen are buying and building homes. When earnings and savings are both great there is certainly true prosperity.

The press agents of the Klondike gold fields are busy circulating reports of huge bags of rich dust which are being shipped to the mints. The greater portion of the working people are too busy to give them attention, preferring a certainty of good returns for their labors to glittering and distant prospects.

Nothing so rare as a day in June. But the weather man is receiving numerous intimations that well-done June days are preferable.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. G. P. Ikirt was in Pittsburgh yesterday.

Charles Steinfeld has returned from a visit at Wheeling.

Mrs. Emma Knoblock left this morning for a visit at Sebring.

George H. Bowden and Rachel J. Davis were married at Alliance.

Miss Virginia Conway, of Uniontown, Pa., is visiting at the home of Rev. W. H. Gladden.

The New Brighton federal building now being erected will cost $75,000.

There are but 187 children of school age in Canfield, three less than last year.

Work on the Canton, Akron & Massillon railway will probably begin within 30 days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Manor left yesterday for a trip to Wilmington, Del., and Trenton, N. J.

E. B. Hawkins has returned to the city after a visit with his parents at Carmichael, Pa.

George Sebring, Sr., returned to Sebring yesterday after being in this city on business for several days.

The body of Frederick Brinkman, of Wheeling, who jumped into the river May 29, was recovered at Bellaire.

Miss Mary Wilburn and Miss Stella Taggart left yesterday afternoon for a visit at Wilmington and New Castle, Pa.

The Pennsylvania Trust company of Pittsburg has been appointed receiver of the Atlantic Tube company of Beaver Falls.

Prof. A. N. Keyser, a former resident of Columbiana, has been chosen superintendent of the schools at Urbana, at a salary of $1,800 a year.

The National Steel company now employs 1,500 workmen at Mingo Junction. It expects to double the number when proposed improvements are completed.

THE LOCAL POTTERIES

Correspondent Gallaher of the Commoner and Glassworker criticises the action of a number of kilndrawers' local in no uncertain terms for their stand against the terms agreed upon by the conference committee. Among other things he says:

"By arraying themselves against a settlement of this nature, made by their own committee, they crown their silly and imprudent warfare by insulting the national organization, their own local and the conference committee, to whom we owe so much. They need not be surprised if they are severely criticised for the action they have taken, and the quicker they realize what uniformity means and the sacrifices made to obtain it by other locals in this vicinity; then, and not till then, will a settlement be arranged."

Jack Randolph, who is employed at the National plant, will leave Tuesday morning for a two weeks' visit to the Pan-American exposition.

James Shaw will resign his position as packer at D. E. McNicol's and expects to take a similar one at another pottery within the next few days.

Fred Waggle, a jiggerman at D. E. McNicol's, is working out his two weeks' notice. The position has been accepted by George Smurthwaite.

Link Seckerson has resigned his position as boss recitor at Knowles, Taylor & Knowles, and will soon assume charge at D. E. McNicol's.

A new tinting machine has been placed in the decorating shop at the D. E. McNicol pottery, and it is in charge of Arthur Walker.

Harry Hamilton has resigned his position as sticker-up at Wallace & Chetwynd's and accepted a similar one at the McNicol plant.

Peter Eoff will leave the employ of the D. E. McNicol pottery Saturday, and will take a position as kilnhand at Knowles' new end next week.

Willard Morris has returned from a western trip in the interests of Knowles, Taylor & Knowles.

Walter Clark has accepted a position in the warehouse at the C. C. Thompson pottery.

William Tillier has accepted a job as jiggerman at the D. E. McNicol pottery.

Oliver Buckley, kilnhand at McNicol's, has resumed his duties after being ill for some time with fever.

George Hollinger has accepted a position as kilnhand at the McNicol pottery.

ONE WAY OUT

A Resident of East Liverpool Shows the Way.

Only one way to cure a bad back. Liniment and plasters may relieve it.

They won't cure it. Backache means sick kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

East Liverpool people prove this. Read a case of it:

Mr. G. H. Garner, the well known manufacturer of ice cream, at 168 Jackson street, says: "My trouble set in with a soreness and stiffness over my whole body; my appetite was poor and I was annoyed a good deal with bloating at the stomach. There was also a urinary difficulty, and I felt generally used up. I tried two or three different remedies, but they did not do me the least good. Having heard Doan's Kidney Pills so highly spoken of, I made up my mind to try them and I procured a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. I did not take over half of it before I was entirely free from any trouble, my appetite was good and my old time vigor restored. I recommended them to many of my friends, among them P. J. Green, V. S., and they all speak of them in the highest terms."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

READING AND THINKING.

Daniel C. Gilman, formerly president of Johns Hopkins university, fears that the young people of the United States are being educated to read too much and to think too little. For this reason he would discourage the multiplication of free libraries. This is strange logic, coming from a man supposed to be versed in that science. Applying it, the professor should urge the abandonment of free schools, because some pupils injure themselves by overstudy; the destruction of gymnasiums, because some gymnasts exercise too much; the shutting up of hotels and restaurants and even the abolition of the every-day dining room and kitchen, because a great many people have the habit of eating too much.

The professor seems to desire a reform in reading habits, and there is undoubtedly need of it. But a reform can easily be too sweeping. You can get rid of tares in a wheat field by starting a prairie fire and you can rid a barn of rats by burning it. But the remedy is worse than the affliction. The reading habit is a habit to be encouraged. Of course people should read with judgment, care and discrimination, if they are to be benefited. Parents and teachers can do much toward cultivating a taste for good literature in the children under their care. But there is less danger from children spending their time over the poorest books found on public library shelves than in running wild in the streets. To say that the accumulations of good literature, embodying the works of great minds of all ages, found in all free libraries, are harmful and that the public should be kept from them in the fear that some one may suffer mental injury, is nonsense. The professor might as well advise people to stay away from church because men have been known to go crazy over religion. "Reading maketh a full man," said Lord Bacon, and wise men agree with him.

A GEORGIA MOB DEFIED.

A Georgia sheriff has prevented the lynching of negro. Such an unusual event deserves more than passing mention. In this case, the sheriff, instead of surrendering his prisoner to the mob that clamored for his life, defended the jail with the aid of a small posse, at the risk of his own life, and defended it in such an effective way that one of the mob was killed and two others seriously injured. This unexpected activity on the part of the representatives of the law broke up the lynching party, and the decrees of the court, rather than those of lawbreakers, will be carried out in reference to the colored prisoner. All honor to Sheriff Joseph Merrill, of Carrollton! Georgia has at least one officer who stands ready to do his sworn duty. If she had more like him Georgia civilization would be of a higher type, and the nation would be spared disgrace and humiliation. For every lynching is a disgrace in a civilized land.

REMARKABLE PROSPERITY.

Prosperity brings its embarrassments, as well as its blessings. We noted a few days ago that the farmers of Kansas were advertising for 20,000 men to help them harvest the coming wheat crop. Stories of a scarcity of farm labor came from almost every section of the country. Now comes a report from Pittsburg that building operations are seriously hampered by a scarcity of bricklayers. Although bricklayers receive $4 a day or 50 cents an hour, contractors cannot find enough of them to do the work they want done. Such a condition of affairs in the building trade has been known before, but it was confined to certain localities. Now it is general. Advertisements placed by Pittsburgers in distant cities, calling for bricklayers, bring no responses. The men have all they can do at home, for the whole country appears to be busy building and improving. In eastern cities, it is said, higher wages are being paid than in Pittsburg for this class of workmen. In other lines of industry, men are not hunting work, but work is hunting them.

A more interesting and important feature of the situation is that, as is natural under the circumstances, workingmen's bank accounts are growing and workingmen are buying and building homes. When earnings and savings are both great there is certainly true prosperity.

The press agents of the Klondike gold fields are busy circulating reports of huge bags of rich dust which are being shipped to the mints. The greater portion of the working people are too busy to give them attention, preferring a certainty of good returns for their labors to glittering and distant prospects.

Nothing so rare as a day in June. But the weather man is receiving numerous intimations that well-done June days are preferable.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. G. P. Ikirt was in Pittsburg yesterday.

Charles Steinfeld has returned from a visit at Wheeling.

Mrs. Emma Knoblock left this morning for a visit at Sebring.

George H. Bowden and Rachel J. Davis were married at Alliance.

Miss Virginia Conway, of Uniontown, Pa., is visiting at the home of Rev. W. H. Gladden.

The New Brighton federal building now being erected will cost $75,000.

There are but 187 children of school age in Canfield, three less than last year.

Work on the Canton, Akron & Massillon railway will probably begin within 30 days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Manor left yesterday for a trip to Wilmington, Del., and Trenton, N. J.

E. B. Hawkins has returned to the city after a visit with his parents at Carmichaels, Pa.

George Sebring, Sr., returned to Sebring yesterday after being in this city on business for several days.

The body of Frederick Brinkman, of Wheeling, who jumped into the river May 29, was recovered at Bellaire.

Miss Mary Wilburn and Miss Stella Taggart left yesterday afternoon for a visit at Wilmington and New Castle, Pa.

The Pennsylvania Trust company of Pittsburg has been appointed receiver of the Atlantic Tube company of Beaver Falls.

Prof. A. N. Keyser, a former resident of Columbiana, has been chosen superintendent of the schools at Urbana, at a salary of $1,800 a year.

The National Steel company now employs 1,500 workmen at Mingo Junction. It expects to double the number when proposed improvements are completed.

Did Flinn Have to Resign?

Pittsburg, June 8.—Senator William Flinn resigned from the chairmanship of the Republican city committee and the election of Public Safety Director J. O. Brown to succeed him occurred. On the surface this change was voluntarily made. Behind the scenes it was said that there was nothing else for the senator to do; that it was necessary to the preservation of what was left of the city machine.

Stoutsville, Mo., May 5, 1901. Gentlemen—I have been troubled with indigestion and constipation for the past two years, and have tried every remedy known, and had never received any relief until I was handed a trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepson through our druggist, J. W. Watson, who gave me immediate relief, and I afterward bought a fifty cent bottle, which I can truthfully say gave me more relief than anything I have ever tried—R. B. Hurd. Sold by the W. & W. pharmacy.

Pittsburg, June 8.—Senator William Flinn resigned from the chairmanship of the Republican city committee and the election of Public Safety Director J. O. Brown to succeed him occurred. On the surface this change was voluntarily made. Behind the scenes it was said that there was nothing else for the senator to do; that it was necessary to the preservation of what was left of the city machine.

Stoutsville, Mo., May 5, 1900.
Gentlemen:—I have been troubled with indigestion and constipation for the past two years, and have tried every remedy known, and had never received any relief until I was handed a trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin through our druggist, J. W. Watson, which gave me immediate relief, and I afterward bought a fifty cent bottle, which I can truthfully say gave me more relief than anything I have ever tried—R. B. Hurd. Sold by the W. & W. pharmacy.

Hunyan Pleaded Guilty and Sentenced

As announced exclusively in last evening's News Review, New Cumberland is in a furor of excitement over the development of a case of smallpox.

Mrs. Robert Fadely, who resides at Black Horse, in the lower end of the town, is the victim. The disease is believed to have come from the clothing inclosed in a washing machine caught in the drift during the recent flood.

Mrs. Fadely washed the clothes and thus came in direct contact with the germs. Her ailment was at first pronounced "Cuban itch." Medical authorities state that the first stages of Cuban itch and smallpox are so similar that it is very hard to distinguish the difference. Dr. R. E. Cramer is attending Mrs. Fadely.

The News Review looks well and is as good as it looks.

CHAPTER TWO (Continued).

"It is true," I said, "that we have not had an introduction, though we are seeing a good deal of each other's society, but it is not too late. My name is Philip Marcel."

"Why, that sounds like French, and I thought you were an American."

"Both are true. I am an American, and the name Marcel used to be French. I am of French descent partly, and I may have British blood, too, though I shall not boast of it. There are many of us in South Carolina."

"But I thought you were northern. You said you had been serving in the northern army of the rebels!"

"The patriots."

"Well, the patriots, then, under Mr. Washington."

"General Washington!"

"Well, General Washington."

"Yes, I have been serving in the northern army of the patriots under General Washington, but he has sent me south with General Greene and the others, mostly southerners themselves, to redeem this part of the country from the British raiders. But I am a South Carolinian."

She relapsed into silence again, and I imitated her example. I had enough of importance anyhow to think about without talking to a girl, an enemy, but presently I recollect.

"Pardon me," I said, "but you have forgotten something too."

"What is it?"

"You have not told me your name. That is true, and the introduction cannot be complete until I do."

"Certainly not."

"My name is Howard."

"Howard! What Howard?"

"Julia Howard. My father is John Sinclair Howard, Major in Tarleton's legion. I was born in Devonshire, England, and I am here with my father, having nobody else to look after me, until such time as these rebellious colonies are put down and restored in their allegiance to their lawful sovereign, George III, king of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland, God bless him!"

I thought that God could find something better to do than to waste his time blessing King George, a fat German blockhead, but I kept the thought to myself just then.

"Then, mark my words, Miss Julia Howard of Devonshire, England," I said, "you have come here to stay."

"I don't believe it."

"It is a prediction; it will come true."

Her look was full of disbelief, and we relapsed into silence again. The shadows grew in the sky. The sun blazed like fire, and my old trouble about the future came back.

The horses ceased to pant and walked now with springy steps, their weariness gone. Old Put thrust his nose under my arm and whinnied gently. He was talking in the language that we two understood. I rubbed his soft nose.

"Yes, old fellow," I said to him, "you have done your duty well, as you always do. We'll stop soon, and then I'll find you something to eat."

He whinnied again and rubbed his nose on my sleeve, for he understood.

"He looks like a good horse," said the girl.

"Never better," I replied and with emphasis.

"I like a good horse," she said.

"So do I. That's the reason I'm so fond of Old Put."

"I wonder if he would be as friendly with me?"

"I don't know. He usually likes old friends best, but still Old Put is a horse of fine taste."

Her evident admiration of Old Put appealed to me, and I thought I would give her the little compliment. Women like such things, and again I felt as if I could afford to be generous.

She put her hand upon his nose and stroked it gently. It was a white, well-shaped hand, with pretty tapering fingers. Old Put must have admired it. He assisted in the rubbing task, swaying his nose gently to and fro, and he whinnied once softly as he did when he was talking to me. He seemed to have forgotten the blow she had given him.

"See," she said triumphantly. "He has found a new friend, a good friend, and he knows it. He is almost as fond of me as he is of you."

I was surprised, greatly surprised. Heretofore Old Put had always proved himself to be an excellent judge of character, and now he was putting his trust in this English girl, who had shown herself to be unworthy of any trust whatever. Poor Old Put! Another masculine dupe! He was growing old; he was failing into his dotage. I felt a certain sadness at these signs of mental decay in my faithful horse. But they marched on, his silky nose pressed closely against her arm, and meanwhile the sun was sinking and the shadows were deepening and lengthening.

"I do not think it is necessary for us to walk any more," I said. "The horses are now thoroughly rested from their race and are willing to do their part, which is to carry us."

She looked at her ugly brown hack in some dismay.

"He's such a rough traveler I believe I'd rather walk," she said.

He certainly had a most irregular, jumping kind of gait, which would make him an unpleasant mount for anybody, but there seemed to be no recourse. Horses were not running loose around us for me to catch.

"But we can't help it," I said. "We can ride slowly, in a walk. If he misbehaves, use that switch you have picked up."

She walked steadily on.

"Now, if he were like this one," she said, stroking Old Put's nose, "I would be glad to ride again."

"Suppose I change the saddles, then," I said, "and let you ride Old Put?"

It was a great concession for me to make, but her appreciation of my horse had touched me for the moment.

"Do you think he would let me?" she said, looking at Old Put doubtfully and timidly.

Now I was indignant. It was a slur upon the character of Old Put, one of the gentlest and best bred of horses, to insinuate that he would behave badly with a lady on his back.

No man except myself has ridden him in years," I said. "Perhaps no woman has ever ridden him at all, but that is no reason why one should not ride him now."

"But I am afraid," she protested again in timid fashion. All her courage seemed to have gone. Again I say you have only to be stern with a woman to keep her at your feet.

"Nonsense!" I said, a little roughly. "We'll stop talking about this and do it at once."

I halted the horses and changed the saddles, while she looked doubtfully on. Old Put submitted like an angel, and I drew the girth tight. Then I said:

"Now, if you would know what a real saddle horse is, Miss Howard, just jump up there."

"Will you help me?"

Another proof of her subdued condition!

I held out my hand in most gallant fashion. She leaned on it for a moment to give herself a support and sprang into the saddle. Then, giving Old Put a cut with the switch which she had picked up, she galloped off.

"Goodby, Mr. Marcel!" she shouted "I ride the better horse now."

She turned Old Put's nose to the southwest, and away she went at the very best speed of which my good horse was capable, and that was much. Her yellow hair flew in the wind, as before, like the streamers of a defiant battle-flag, and either with or without intent the red cap she wore was set rakishly and saucily on one side of her head.

CHAPTER III

THE MERIT OF A GOOD HORSE.

I paused, not to swear this time, but for a momentary reflection on the vanity of man and the deceitfulness of woman in taking advantage of it, and then I sprang upon the back of that old brown hack—confound him for an army mule without the ears!—and gave chase.

I had no switch or whip, but I rowed him and kicked him in the sides until I frightened him into a greater speed than he or any one else believed to dwell within his long frame. He gave a wild snort, and we plunged after the fleet girl, rocking and swaying like a boat in a stormy sea, but even with such exertion he could not compare with Old Put. Despite the anxiety of the moment, I noted his inferiority with some pride, but then I remembered how much depended upon the success of the pursuit, and I continued to urge on my own mount.

Strive and strain as we could and ride and thump as I would with all my arms and legs, we lost ground rapidly. The girl turned her head once to look at me, and I thought I saw a look of triumph on her face, but I suppose it was my imagination which was industriously tormenting me just then. I groaned at the certainty of her escape, and then hope seized me, for I remembered suddenly that I, too, had a trick to play. Old Put and I possessed a common language in which we often talked, with perfect understanding. I put two fingers to my lips and blew between them a long, shrill whistle, which cut the air and traveled like the scream of a fife. It was a request, a command even, to him to stop and wait for me. He twisted his long neck in the manner of one listening, looking back at me to see what I meant, but he went on, though with slightly diminished speed, his manner indicating that he was uncertain what I had said.

The girl was belaboring him with the switch, for she must have noticed his decreasing gait. I whistled again.

"I do not think it is necessary for us and as Old Put's pace sank to a trot she beat him fiercely with the switch. A third whistle, and Old Put, now in perfect accord with me, stopped stock still; not only that, but he faced about and neighed joyously. The girl threw the remains of her switch upon the ground and began to cry, not pitifully, but angrily, fiercely. I rode up slowly and held out my hand to Old Put, who rubbed his nose against it. He knew his master and best friend. Never had I beaten him, and now there were stripes and welts on his side where she had pounded him with a switch, or rather stick.

"Why did you not tell me what sort of a horse he was," she cried, "and then I would not have made myself look so ridiculous, sitting here as if I had been tied and waiting for you to come up?"

"Miss Howard," said I in some astonishment, "do you expect me to show you the way to escape?"

"I do not expect anything from you, a rebel," she said. "Do not speak to me again."

All right; that suited me. I did not wish to talk to her. She used words only to inveigle me into some incautious mood. But it was necessary for me to tell her to dismount in order that I might change saddles again, as I did not intend to give her another such opportunity. I did not offer to assist her, having had enough of that, but stood beside the brown hack, watching her with a look that was now strictly military.

"Why don't you help me down?" she said angrily. "Have you no courtesy for a lady?"

"You have declined such assistance from a rebel before," I said in reply to her unexpected question.

"And I decline again. You needn't offer it," she said abruptly, springing to the ground, when I had no thought of offering it.

As soon as she was off his back Old Put showed the greatest distrust of her and aversion. He shied as far away from her as my hold on his bridle would let him, and his big, dark eyes shone with wrath. I was glad that he had come back to his senses, and he, like I, should have known her thoroughly from the first and always.

"We don't intend to be deceived by her again, do we, old comrade?" said I to him.

He nodded his head in emphatic fashion, and his big eye winked intelligently. Her eyes flashed a little, but she took no other notice.

"Look well at this lady, Put," I said. "Do you note her?"

He nodded.

"She's English, we're Americans, and therefore she's an enemy and not to be trusted. Watch her well," I continued.

He nodded violently.

"Now, Miss Howard," I said severely, "I've changed those saddles, and they are ready for our use when we need them, but meanwhile we'll walk again, as we've tired our horses out for the second time, and all your fault too."

She said nothing, but walked on in the way which I had indicated, keeping eight or ten feet from me. She had ceased to cry and had given her features a fixed and angry set.

I was troubled greatly. We had wasted so much time over her futile efforts to escape that the problem of a night's shelter had grown more difficult and pressing, and I intended that my attention should not be diverted from it again. Therefore I would take precautions. I drew from my pocket a long silk handkerchief, a trophy of the Monmouth campaign, which I had preserved with great care.

"Hold out your hands," I said.

"What would you do?" she asked, turning upon me a look of fire.

But I was firm. My experience had been too great.

"Hold out your hands," I repeated. "I intend to bind them together. You play too many tricks."

"You are not a gentleman."

"You have told me that three or four times already. It won't bear further repetition."

"I will not submit to such a thing."

"Then I will have to use force, which will make it much more unpleasant for you."

I hated to do what I had planned. It was rude and severe, but then there are few who have had women prisoners like mine, and consequently there are few who are in a position to judge me. I prefer greatly to deal with the regular forces, but in this case I had no choice, and so I strengthened my will and proceeded.

"Hold out your wrists," I repeated. "I shall not hurt you. I merely wish to keep you out of further mischief."

"I shall never forgive you," she said.

I could afford to laugh at such a threat.

I held out my hand in most gallant fashion. She leaned on it for a moment to give herself a support and sprang into the saddle. Then, giving Old Put a cut with the switch which she had picked up, she galloped away.

"Goodby, Mr. Marcel!" she shouted. "I ride the better horse now."

She turned Old Put's nose to the southwest, and away she went at the very best speed of which my good horse was capable, and that was much. He shied and averted. He shied as far away from her as my hold on his bridle would let him, and his big, dark eyes shone with wrath. I was glad that he had come back to his senses, and he, like I, should have known her thoroughly from the first and always.

"And I decline again. You needn't offer it," she said abruptly, springing to the ground, when I had no thought of offering it.

As soon as she was off his back Old Put showed the greatest distrust of her and aversion. He shied as far away from her as my hold on his bridle would let him, and his big, dark eyes shone with wrath. I was glad that he had come back to his senses, and he, like I, should have known her thoroughly from the first and always.

"We don't intend to be deceived by her again, do we, old comrade?" said I to him.

He nodded his head in emphatic fashion, and his big eye winked intelligently. Her eyes flashed a little, but she took no other notice.

"Look well at this lady, Put," I said. "Do you note her?"

He nodded.

"She's English, we're Americans, and therefore she's an enemy and not to be trusted. Watch her well," I continued.

He nodded violently.

"Now, Miss Howard," I said severely, "I've changed those saddles, and they are ready for our use when we need them, but meanwhile we'll walk again, as we've tired our horses out for the second time, and all your fault too."

She said nothing, but walked on in the way which I had indicated, keeping eight or ten feet from me. She had ceased to cry and had given her features a fixed and angry set.

I was troubled greatly. We had wasted so much time over her futile efforts to escape that the problem of a night's shelter had grown more difficult and pressing, and I intended that my attention should not be diverted from it again. Therefore I would take precautions. I drew from my pocket a long silk handkerchief, a trophy of the Monmouth campaign, which I had preserved with great care.

"Hold out your hands," I said.

"What would you do?" she asked, turning upon me a look of fire.

But I was firm. My experience had been too great.

"Hold out your hands," I repeated.

"I intend to bind them together. You play too many tricks."

"You are not a gentleman."

"You have told me that three or four times already. It won't bear further repetition."

"I will not submit to such a thing."

"Then I will have to use force, which will make it much more unpleasant for you."

I hated to do what I had planned. It was rude and severe, but then there are few who have had women prisoners like mine, and consequently there are few who are in a position to judge me. I prefer greatly to deal with the regular forces, but in this case I had no choice, and so I strengthened my will and proceeded.

"Hold out your wrists," I repeated.

"I shall not hurt you. I merely wish to keep you out of further mischief."

"I shall never forgive you," she said.

I could afford to laugh at such a threat.

WEST END

AT THE WEST END

Cobble Stone Battle, the Arrest of a Cow And Other News Items.

John M. Aten has purchased 20 lots Newell which he will probably hold speculative purposes. His lots lie by side and are in the best part of the proposed town.

Mrs. Harry Weaver and children, East Palestine, are visiting at the home of D. J. Pauley, Eighth street.

Work on the erection of the grand and West End Park was commenced yesterday afternoon. It will be shed to completion as soon as posible. The residents of Lisbon road were detained for a short time last evening by a cobble stone battle between several pickaninnies and two boys who were driving a junk wagon. The colored youngsters began the battle and evidently thought it was great fun to pelt the rag man's horse with stones and then run back to the house. The rag man seemed to think it would be more fun to pelt the pickaninnies, but none of the participants could hit a barn door and so the trouble terminated without any injury to person.

A great deal of loud talking, bluffing and useless expostulating was indulged in at Pleasant Heights yesterday evening when Officer Frank Johnson took up a cow belonging to William McGills and assessed the owner 75 cents for permitting the animal to run at large. McGills insisted that he did not know the cow was loose, and consequently could not be made to pay for the violation of the ordinance. The officer persuaded him that he was obliged to enforce the law whether the cow had accidentally broken loose or not, and after enough law had been laid down by both parties to equal in value the combined statutes of Ohio, the irate owner paid the amount against the beast and took her home.

It is said that he is now considering the advisability of following the example of a Calcutta road woman, and sending the cow to the country to board.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assuring nature in doing it's work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Birthday Celebration—Yesterday being the forty-eighth anniversary of Mr. M. Whitaker's birth, a large party of his friends gathered at his home last evening and assisted in the celebration of the occasion in a fitting manner. The evening was spent in conversation and general sociality.

The Cow to Come Back—Humane Officer Miller gave out the information this morning that Mrs. Gotham had determined to bring her cow home. The humane representative had been complained to concerning the treatment of the cow, and made two trips to its quarters. On both occasions he found the animal well cared for, and states that there was absolutely no cause for complaint.

CUBANS WILL ACCEPT

Conservatives Determined to Force Agreement to Platt Amendment.

ADMINISTRATION IS HOPEFUL

Cabinet Discussed Both Cuban and Philippine Affairs—Order For Civil Government In Oriental Possessions Soon to Be Promulgated.

Havana, June 8.—The Cuban constitutional convention will hold a meeting next Monday to discuss the instructions received from Washington regarding the Platt amendment. The fifteen delegates who voted in favor of the amendment have held several meetings and are unanimous in thinking that the amendment must be accepted in a manner satisfactory to the United States government; and they are determined to force the radical elements to accept the amendment under threat of dissolving the convention.

The radicals strongly oppose dissolution, and some of the extremists admitted that it would be better to comply with the Washington instructions.

Washington, June 8.—The cabinet was in session over two hours discussing the Cuban and Philippine situations. A communication has been received from Governor General Wood regarding the prospect for the unconditional acceptance of the Platt amendment, but its contents are not made public. It can be stated, however, that there is a hopeful feeling in administration circles that after the first soreness wears off the convention will see the wisdom of adopting the terms of the amendment. The answer to General Wood is to be sent and the language of that communication was under discussion. Meantime the existing status in Cuba is to be maintained. No action looking to the calling of another convention is in contemplation if the present convention should decline to accede to our terms. The program looking to the establishment of civil government in the Philippines is being formulated in the shape of an order which is to be promulgated shortly. It is said that there is no definite conclusion as to whether the powers of the civil administration will be exercised under the general war powers of the president or the authority vested in him by the Spooner amendment. That, however, is considered a matter of detail. The main point is that the civil administration, which will be confined largely to the municipalities, will be vested in the head of the Taft commission and such other officials as may be designated, and that they will exercise their functions subject to the direct authority of the secretary of war, to whom all reports will be made. Civil administration under military supervision, such as is contemplated, is said not to be anomalous and the civil government in New Mexico and the southern states during the early stages of the reconstruction period are pointed to as being substantially analogous to what is proposed in the Philippines.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

17TH YEAR. NO. 307.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 1901.

TWO CENTS

GIGANTIC INDUSTRY WANTS TO COME TO EAST LIVERPOOL

Proposition Withheld at Board of Trade Meeting Becomes Known.

COMPANY BEING FORMED

With a Capital of $300,000 to Manufacture Brass and Copper Work.

HALF OF AMOUNT SUBSCRIBED

A Portion of Which Represents East Liverpool Capital—Plant Will Employ 500 Skilled Workmen—Subscription of $250,000 Is Asked.

At the meeting of the board of trade held Thursday night, Attorney G. Y. Travis, secretary of the board, spoke of a proposition concerning the organization of company, the promoters of which asked subscriptions of $250,000 from the people of East Liverpool to locate here. He failed to say anything regarding the nature of the proposition and repeated efforts on the part of News Review reporters to induce him to divulge the facts concerning the deal have been unavailing.

However, it was learned today from another, but thoroughly reliable source, the full details of the matter, and although there has been but little headway made as yet, it is believed by the local parties interested in the deal that it will be carried through.

The party from whom the information was received declined to give the names of the promoters of the deal, giving as his reasons that it was poor policy and likely to work detrimentally to the scheme if the identity of the persons became public. He stated that the matter was being pushed quietly, and that it was the purpose to withhold names so as to keep other outside speculators in the dark.

It was learned that at the present time a company is being formed in Olean, N. Y., with a capital stock of $300,000, one-half of that amount having already been subscribed, and that a portion of the stock represents local capital. It is the intention of the company to erect a foundry and machine shop for the manufacture of brass and copper castings, in addition to the above a smelting furnace will be built, which will differ in every respect from anything in this section of the country.

The head men of the company hold patents on everything that will be manufactured, and it is said their product will be of such a nature that the competition in the United States will be of little significance. Patents are held on a new process that will be used in melting the metal, which is said to be one of the greatest inventions of modern times.

The company will manufacture brass and copper work for marine and stationary engines, locomotives, ice and brewing plants, and in addition will make electrical supplies. When the contemplated plant is once put in operation, 500 skilled mechanics will be employed. This is the agreement which the company has made with the board of trade of this city.

One of the organizers of the company was in East Liverpool two weeks ago, and though his visit has been kept a secret it was learned that he came here for the sole purpose of inducing the board of trade to take up with his scheme. A subscription of $250,000 is asked, which amount is to be used in erecting the buildings necessary for the operation of the plant.

While it did not come from an official source, the statement was made to a reporter that Mr. Travis would unfold the scheme at the next meeting of the board, and that if no definite action was taken by that body an effort would be made in other channels to dispose of the necessary stock in the hope that the industry will be located here. Mr. Travis refuses to say anything whatever regarding the deal.

STAUB'S EXPECTATION

It That He Will Be in the Penitentiary Not Longer Than a Year.

Canton, June 8.—Charles Curtis Staub, of Canton, who was sentenced to serve 12 years in the Ohio Penitentary, on a charge of having shot Andrew Miller, near Minerva, with intent to kill, passed through this city on the 9:48 train Thursday morning. His custodian was Sheriff Samuel D. Noragon, of Lisbon, who was taking the prisoner to Columbus. While at the Canton depot Staub thrust his head out the window of the smoking car and hailed Baggage-man Otto F. Ferger, who was passing along on the station platform.

Being handcuffed Staub found it necessary to put both hands through the window in order to shake hands with Mr. Ferger. Staub said: "Give my best regards to my brother and George Bender and Adam Thomas. Tell them all you saw me and remember me to all my friends. I'll be in Columbus about a year."

STARTLING RUMOR

OF THE MURDER OF A FORMER EAST LIVERPOOL MAN.

Stranger Claimed That William Frank Had Been Assassinated.

A report was circulated last night by a stranger, whose identity could not be learned, to the effect that William Frank, who recently conducted a bar room in Diamond alley, had been murdered in Syracuse, N. Y. Other rumors also gained ground that Frank had been killed in Weston, W. Va., in which city he is now thought to be.

It could not be learned where the stranger secured his information, and little credence was given the report. William Handsome, who left this city with Robinson's circus, claims to have met Frank in Weston about two weeks ago, and says that he was working there.

A telegram sent this morning to police headquarters at Syracuse failed to substantiate the story. Charles R. Wright, chief of the police of that city, forwarded the following message: "William Frank unknown; all dead men accounted for."

The chief of police of Weston wired this afternoon: "William Frank is here, alive and well."

FELL IN A WELL

JAMES DIXON, OF THIS CITY, DISLOCATED A SHOULDER.

Rope He Was Descending Broke, Giving Him a Terrible Fall Yesterday.

James Dixon, of this city, met with an accident yesterday afternoon which nearly cost his life.

Dixon was engaged in cleaning out a well on the Gaston farm, near Calcutta, and was descending down a rope which parted when he was seven feet from the top, causing him to drop a distance of 28 feet. He alighted on his right side, dislocating his shoulder and wrist. He was assisted out of the well by one of the farm hands and his injuries dressed, and although very today, he is able to be around.

BUSINESS MEN WERE TAKEN IN

Cleverly Duped By a Smooth-Tongued Stranger's Big Talk.

HAD TO FOOT HIS BILLS

He Professed to Be Negotiating for a Site for a Big Mill—Those Who Met Him Now Regret Making His Acquaintance.

According to a report which is current among real estate men the individual who was in East Liverpool a few days since, giving his name as E. J. Brooks and claiming to represent a Massachusetts manufacturing company, is an impostor and schemer and came here for the purpose of working his game.

That he succeeded in his motive is evidenced by the fact that several of the local speculators who had the "capitalist" in tow during his stay in this city are several dollars short and wondering how it came about that they were so easily taken in.

It will be remembered that Brooks entered into negotiations for the purchase of 50 acres of land in the East End. It was the owners of the property who entertained the gentleman during his visit here. He was a very agreeable sort of fellow and his victims had little trouble in dealing with him. He seemed so very much taken up with the bargain he was offered that he stated he felt disposed to pay down the ready cash and close the deal at once. However, he explained he would have to take the proposition before the others connected with the company, but made known the fact that the bargain would be closed as soon as he could consult his partners and return to the city.

Brooks was in East Liverpool several days, and during all of that time he was entertained in royal style at the expense of his unsuspecting victims. Ten-cent cigars were not good enough for the "capitalists," and he was kept well supplied with Havanas of the best grade. His appetite was well looked after also, and an occasional nip of champagne was not at all objected to by the "financier."

After Mr. Brooks had accepted of the hospitalities of his entertainers until he had become ashamed of himself, he made known the fact that he was anxious to report his success in the deal made here to the other members of the company. On taking his departure the gentleman was accompanied to the train by his innocent dupes, who gave him the glad hand and sent him on his way rejoicing.

It was previously agreed by Mr. Brooks that he would wire the outcome of his conference with his partners immediately on his return to his home city. Whether the wire he proposed using has become disabled or retired is not known, but it is positively known that Mr. Brooks has not yet sent the much desired message. Since his departure it has become rumored that he forgot to pay his hotel bill in this city.

Although the men who Mr. Brooks victimized refuse to talk of the affair, it is known they are now fully aware that they were bunkoed. Where the man came from or who he is has not been learned, but it is evident he is a clever schemer and does not have to depend on the sweat of his brow for his daily bread.

HORSE CAUSED TROUBLE

A Trade That Resulted Disastrously for Daniel Davis Made Sport for Others.

Daniel Davis yesterday traded a horse owned by him to John Allen, giving $5 additional for another one possessed by the latter. Davis hitched his newly acquired beast to a buckboard and started down Market street.

When he reached Fourth street the animal balked and in spite of the efforts of the driver to urge it forward, it straightened out its fore legs and stood rigid.

The whip was applied, but without effect, and the driver then undertook to lead the beast. He failed to accomplish anything, and as he gave vent to his temper in cloudy expletives the crowd which had gathered about the scene laughed uproariously. The stubborn brute was finally conquered and gotten off the street.

CHAMBERLAIN AWARDED $233

Successful in His Damage Suit Against the City of East Liverpool.

A DIVORCE WAS GRANTED

To Mrs. Walter Burrows Who Claims Her Life Was in Danger—Husband Gets His Furniture — Interesting Suit Over Notes.

Lisbon, June 8. — (Special.)—The jury in the case of Jesse J. Chamberlain against the city of East Liverpool, tried yesterday, returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $233. Chamberlain asked $326.

The jury was excused from further duty until next Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Sarah E. Burrows, of East Liverpool, was granted a divorce this morning from Walter Burrows. Contrary to the usual custom, Burrows contested the case and was given all money in the shape of the furniture in the room he occupies in his wife's home. The couple were married in May, 1876, in North Malvern parish, Worcester county, England, and have two children. Burrows, it is alleged, has been habitually drunk and has made a practice of beating his wife and has frequently threatened to kill her. In August, 1899, it is stated, he terrified her by shooting himself in the head, in an attempt at suicide. Mrs. Burrows recently inherited some money from relatives in England and Burrows wanted a share.

W. S. Potts, administrator of the estate of the late John Matthews, filed an action today, and Judge Hole granted a temporary restraining order, which will keep Sylvester P. Dow from cutting and disposing of valuable timber on land owned by the estate in Hanover township.

Prior to September, 1900, Mary J. Matthews, the widow of John, sold Dow 326 acres of land, reserving only the right of way of the C. & P. railroad. He paid her $3,750 and gave her in addition two notes, each calling for $5,625, due in one and two years. The interest now due is $675.

Owing to the depreciation of real estate in Hanover township and the failure of the defendant to keep the fences in repair the land is said not to be worth over $12,000. Hence the injunction to keep Dow from cutting and selling the timber.

PARROTT AGAIN TO FRONT

Wants to Sell Library Directors a Book of His Authorship on Game Chickens.

A communication to John Horton Parrott, the alleged architect, who has for several weeks been harassing the directors of the Carnegie library, informing him that the plans he submitted had arrived too late and that the building was in course of construction, was sent to the individual in the hope that he would cease further correspondence.

Since Parrott has learned for a certainty that the building is to be built he has evidenced determination to become identified with it in some way, and has sent a circular to the directors descriptive of a book of his authorship on "The Anatomy and Structural Peculiarities of the Game Fowl," which he believes would be a valuable acquisition to the library's literature.

The circular states that "the work will be largely devoted to the elucidation of the main idea concerning the game fowl and its characteristic peculiarities in the best form of development. It will accurately describe the bony structure and the muscular integuments of the game cock."

It has not yet been decided how many copies of the book will be ordered for the library.

IN AID OF EXECUTION

A Suit Is Filed in Justice McCarron's Court—Another Action for Money.

An affidavit in aid of execution was filed against James McHenry in Justice McCarron's court yesterday afternoon, by Mary Zook, Lizzie Sheets and William Zook, the surviving heirs of A. Zook, deceased. Last October the plaintiffs in the case procured a judgment against McHenry for $30, which amount was claimed for labor performed by A. Zook previous to his death. The case now brought is to recover the amount of the judgment. It will be heard next Wednesday.

HIS SAFE WAS BLOWN OPEN AND $400 IN COIN TAKEN

John Wines, a minor, by his father, John Wines, Sr., brought suit yesterday in the court of Justice McCarron against Ed McHenry for $8.50. Young Wines worked for McHenry and claims the sum above designated is due him. It is thought the case will be settled without trial, as the defendant confesses judgment and has agreed to pay the amount.

BOARD OF HEALTH

DISCUSSED THE SEWER QUESTION AT ITS MEETING.

Resolutions to Be Presented to Council at Its Next Session.

The board of health met last night at city hall, all members being present, excepting Messrs. Nellis and Haines. Dr. T. H. Birkett, who was appointed a member of the board to succeed J. C. Kerr, was sworn into office by Mayor Davidson.

Health Officer Ogden submitted his report for the month of May. The births were 17 male and 18 females, while the deaths were five males and nine females. Seven cases of typhoid and one of scarlet fever were reported during the month.

A discussion of the sewer question was brought up with the result that the clerk, J. T. Herbert, was instructed to draw up resolutions in conjunction with the city solicitor to be presented to council at the next meeting, asking that sewers be put down in Trentvale street, Pleasant street, Green lane, Calcutta road and along the Horn switch; also that the sewer on Sheridan avenue be extended and that Lake's run in the East End be piped and covered over.

RIVER RISING

Coal Shipping Stage Expected—Gallagher Shanty Boat Gone.

The river commenced to raise last night and the marks at the wharf this morning registered 14 feet. Ten feet of water is expected at Pittsburg, making more shipments of coal possible.

The Virginia passed up and the Greenwood down last night. The Virginia and Lorena will go down tonight.

The steamer Venice, owned by Ed Schneider, came to the city this morning and took the Oregon, the boat which was occupied by Charles Gallagher and which is owned by Mr. Schneider, to Verona, Pa., where it will be used for a boarding house.

FRIENDS AND VISITORS

E. W. Johnson has returned to his home in North Baltimore after a visit with relatives here.

Prof. S. A. Harbour, who for the past four years has been superintendent of the schools of Toronto, has been elected superintendent of the schools of New Waterford.

J. A. Davis and mother, of Marietta, are the guests of Mrs. J. W. Clark, Lincoln avenue. Mr. Davis will return home this evening, but Mrs. Davis will remain here for some time.

Jesse Bailey, an ex-policeman and a resident of Port Huron, was roused from his sleep by the rattling of a chain on his skiff. He got out and blazed away at the would-be thief, who

Among the graduates from the Northern Ohio Normal college at Canfield last week were Emily Dildine, New Waterford; Margaret Smith, Wellsville; Joseph E. Roller, Washingtonville, and Martha Swaney, Clarkston.

The Salineville Banner is now a five column quarto, all printed in Salineville. In typographical appearance and in newsiness it has few superiors among Ohio weeklies. Its improvement during the past few months is most marked.

Mrs. Mary Stewart, of lower Broadway, leaves today for East Palestine for a two weeks' visit to her son, James S. Stewart, and granddaughter, Mrs. Fred Sebring. She will be accompanied by Miss Belle Stewart and Miss Georgia McLane, who will remain for a few days.

SOLDIERS DISAPPOINTED

East Liverpool Boy Who Expected to Come Home Finds He Can't.

Charles Boulton has received a letter from Cash McKinnon, who is serving in the Seventeenth United States infantry in the Philippines.

McKinnon's term of enlistment was to have expired the last of this month and he expected to return to this country at once. His regiment, however, has been ordered to the interior of the islands, and he states that he will be unable to return before next May.

He says the boys are nearly all greatly disappointed, as they were heartily tired of soldier life and anxious to get home.

READING AND THINKING.

Daniel C. Gilman, formerly president of Johns Hopkins university, fears that the young people of the United States are being educated to read too much and to think too little. For this reason he would discourage the multiplication of free libraries. This is strange logic, coming from a man supposed to be versed in that science. Applying it, the professor should urge the abandonment of free schools, because some pupils injure themselves by overstudy; the destruction of gymnasiums, because some gymnasts exercise too much; the shutting up of hotels and restaurants and even the abolition of the every-day dining room and kitchen, because a great many people have the habit of eating too much.

The professor seems to desire a reform in reading habits, and there is undoubtedly need of it. But a reform can easily be too sweeping. You can get rid of tares in a wheat field by starting a prairie fire and you can rid a barn of rats by burning it. But the remedy is worse than the affliction. The reading habit is a habit to be encouraged. Of course people should read with judgment, care and discrimination, if they are to be benefited. Parents and teachers can do much toward cultivating a taste for good literature in the children under their care. But there is less danger from children spending their time over the poorest books found on public library shelves than in running wild in the streets. To say that the accumulations of good literature, embodying the works of great minds of all ages, found in all free libraries, are harmful and that the public should be kept from them in the fear that some one may suffer mental injury, is nonsense. The professor might as well advise people to stay away from church because men have been known to go crazy over religion. "Reading maketh a full man," said Lord Bacon, and wise men agree with him.

A GEORGIA MOB DEFIED.

A Georgia sheriff has prevented the lynching of a negro. Such an unusual event deserves more than passing mention. In this case, the sheriff, instead of surrendering his prisoner to the mob that clamored for his life, defended the jail with the aid of a small posse, at the risk of his own life, and defended it in such an effective way that one of the mob was killed and two others seriously injured. This unexpected activity on the part of the representatives of the law broke up the lynching party, and the decrees of the court, rather than those of lawbreakers, will be carried out in reference to the colored prisoner. All honor to Sheriff Joseph Merrill, of Carrollton! Georgia has at least one officer who stands ready to do his sworn duty. If she had more like him Georgia civilization would be of a higher type, and the nation would be spared disgrace and humiliation. For every lynching is a disgrace in a civilized land.

REMARKABLE PROSPERITY.

Prosperity brings its embarrassments, as well as its blessings. We noted a few days ago that the farmers of Kansas were advertising for 20,000 men to help them harvest the coming wheat crop. Stories of a scarcity of farm labor came from almost every section of the country. Now comes a report from Pittsburgh that building operations are seriously hampered by a scarcity of bricklayers. Although bricklayers receive $4 a day or 50 cents an hour, contractors cannot find enough of them to do the work they want done. Such a condition of affairs in the building trade has been known before, but it was confined to certain localities. Now it is general. Advertisements placed by Pittsburgers in distant cities, calling for bricklayers, bring no responses. The men have all they can do at home, for the whole country appears to be busy building and improving. In eastern cities, it is said, higher wages are being paid than in Pittsburg for this class of workmen. In other lines of industry, men are not hunting work, but work is hunting them.

A more interesting and important feature of the situation is that, as is natural under the circumstances, workingmen's bank accounts are growing and workingmen are buying and building homes. When earnings and savings are both great there is certainly true prosperity.

The press agents of the Klondike gold fields are busy circulating reports of huge bags of rich dust which are being shipped to the mints. The greater portion of the working people are too busy to give them attention, preferring a certainty of good returns for their labors to glittering and distant prospects.

Nothing so rare as a day in June. But the weather man is receiving numerous intimations that well-done June days are preferable.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. G. P. Ikirt was in Pittsburg yesterday.

Charles Steinfeld has returned from a visit at Wheeling.

Mrs. Emma Knoblock left this morning for a visit at Sebring.

George H. Bowden and Rachel J. Davis were married at Alliance.

Miss Virginia Conway, of Uniontown, Pa., is visiting at the home of Rev. W. H. Gladden.

The New Brighton federal building now being erected will cost $75,000.

There are but 187 children of school age in Canfield, three less than last year.

Work on the Canton, Akron & Massillon railway will probably begin within 30 days.

Mr. and Mrs. John Manor left yesterday for a trip to Wilmington, Del., and Trenton, N. J.

E. B. Hawkins has returned to the city after a visit with his parents at Carmichaels, Pa.

George Sebring, Sr., returned to Sebring yesterday after being in this city on business for several days.

The body of Frederick Brinkman, of Wheeling, who jumped into the river May 29, was recovered at Bellaire.

Miss Mary Wilburn and Miss Stella Taggart left yesterday afternoon for a visit at Wilmington and New Castle, Pa.

The Pennsylvania Trust company of Pittsburg has been appointed receiver of the Atlantic Tube company of Beaver Falls.

Prof. A. N. Keyser, a former resident of Columbiana, has been chosen superintendent of the schools at Urbana, at a salary of $1,800 a year.

The National Steel company now employs 1,500 workmen at Mingo Junction. It expects to double the number when proposed improvements are completed.

GLEANINGS OF A DAY

In and About

THE LOCAL POTTERIES

Correspondent Gallaher of the Commoner and Glassworker criticises the action of a number of kilndrawers' local in no uncertain terms for their stand against the terms agreed upon by the conference committee. Among other things he says:

"By arraying themselves against a settlement of this nature, made by their own committee, they crown their silly and imprudent warfare by insulting the national organization, their own local and the conference committee, to whom we owe so much. They need not be surprised if they are severely criticised for the action they have taken, and the quicker they realize what uniformity means and the sacrifices made to obtain it by other locals in this vicinity; then, and not till then, will a settlement be arranged."

Jack Randolph, who is employed at the National plant, will leave Tuesday morning for a two weeks' visit to the Pan-American exposition.

James Shaw will resign his position as packer at D. E. McNicol's and expects to take a similar one at another pottery within the next few days.

Fred Waggle, a jiggeman at D. E. McNicol's, is working out his two weeks' notice. The position has been accepted by George Smurthwaite.

Link Seckerson has resigned his position as boss recrator at Knowles, Taylor & Knowles, and will soon assume charge at D. E. McNicol's.

A new tinting machine has been placed in the decorating shop at the D. E. McNicol pottery, and it is in charge of Arthur Walker.

Harry Hamilton has resigned his position as sticker-up at Wallace & Chetwynd's and accepted a similar one at the McNicol plant.

Peter Eoff will leave the employ of the D. E. McNicol pottery Saturday, and will take a position as kilnhand at Knowles' new end next week.

Willard Morris has returned from a western trip in the interests of Knowles, Taylor & Knowles.

Walter Clark has accepted a position in the warehouse at the C. C. Thompson pottery.

William Tillfer has accepted a job as jiggeman at the D. E. McNicol pottery.

Oliver Buckley, kilnhand at McNicol's, has resumed his duties after being ill for some time with fever.

George Hollinger has accepted a position as kilnhand at the McNicol pottery.

ONE WAY OUT

A Resident of East Liverpool Shows the Way.

Only one way to cure a bad back. Liniment and plasters may relieve it.

They won't cure it. Backache means sick kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

East Liverpool people prove this.

Read a case of it: Mr. G. H. Garner, the well known manufacturer of ice cream, at 168 Jackson street, says: "My trouble set in with a soreness and stiffness over my whole body; my appetite was poor and I was annoyed a good deal with bloating at the stomach. There was also a urinary difficulty, and I felt generally used up. I tried two or three different remedies, but they did not do me the least good. Having heard Doan's Kidney Pills so highly spoken of, I made up my mind to try them and I procured a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. I did not take over half of it before I was entirely free from any trouble, my appetite was good and my old time vigor restored. I recommended them to many of my friends, among them P. J. Green, V. S., and they all speak of them in the highest terms."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

ful One.

CERTIFICATES GRANTED 39

An Excellent Showing—High School Graduates in the Majority Among the Future Teachers—Complete
List of the Successful Candidates.

The city board of examiners finished the work of rating the applicants at the recent examination last night, and this morning Prof. R. E. Rayman was able to report the following list of successful ones, the certificates granted being for one year, except where otherwise noted:

Ethel J. Moore, Mary E. Gladden,
two years; Adeline Blake, Elmer E.
Price, Adda E. Bennett, Leonard
Schepp, Maud Cannon, Lena Howard,
two years; Charles Gardner, Naomi Shontz, Edna Cook, Rachel McBane,
Effie McKinnon, Ora E. Martin, Lottie
Smith, Marie J. Taylor, J. A. Frederick,
W. E. Edwards, Vada Nease, Emily
Firth, Margaret Williams, C. C.
Rankin, three years; Pearl Finley,
Alma E. Croxall, Pearl Shives, Maud
Baum, two years; Bertha Johnson,
Mary A. Douglass, Margaret Cuthbert,
two years; Pearl Grafton, Alyce
Bucher, Mayme Bucher, Janet M. Hill,
two years; Charlotte Rose, two years;
Elizabeth Stevenson, two years; Olive Dickey, Grace Faulk, two years.

But seven of the 46 applicants failed to pass the examination, which is almost unprecedented in the history of the local board. With but two exceptions every member of the class who were graduated recently passed the examination.

Superintendent Rayman states that the papers were in excellent condition and showed by their neatness in preparation that much more time had been devoted to this feature than at any previous examination since he had been in charge of the city schools.

Did Flinn Have to Resign?

Pittsburg, June 8.—Senator William Flinn resigned from the chairmanship of the Republican city committee and the election of Public Safety Director J. O. Brown to succeed him occurred. On the surface this change was voluntarily made. Behind the scenes it was said that there was nothing else for the senator to do; that it was necessary to the preservation of what was left of the city machine.

Stoutsville, Mo., May 5, 1900. Gentlemen—I have been troubled with indigestion and constipation for the past two years, and have tried every remedy known, and had never received any relief until I was handed a trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin through our druggist, J. W. Watson, which gave me immediate relief, and I afterward bought a fifty cent bottle, which I can truthfully say gave me more relief than anything I have ever tried—R. B. Hurd. SOUTH SIDE

IT IS SMALLPOX

NO DOUBT THAT NEW CUMBERLAND HAS A CASE.

Alarm Feft in Chester And Quarantining Is Talked Of.

As announced exclusively in last evening's News Review, New Cumberland is in a furor of excitement over the development of a case of smallpox.

Mrs. Robert Fadely, who resides at Black Horse, in the lower end of the town, is the victim. The disease is believed to have come from the clothing inclosed in a washing machine caught in the drift during the recent flood.

Mrs. Fadely washed the clothes and thus came in direct contact with the germs. Her ailment was at first pronounced "Cuban itch." Medical authorities state that the first stages of Cuban itch and smallpox are so similar that it is very hard to distinguish the difference. Dr. R. E. Cramer is attending Mrs. Fadely.

Quarantine has been established and every precaution will be taken to prevent the disease spreading.

There is a great deal of talk in Chester this morning about quarantining against New Cumberland. A number of people pass to and from Chester to New Cumberland daily and in case of an epidemic at the latter town Chester has good cause for alarm. There are no health officers in Chester, and the people are at a loss to know how to proceed in the matter.

NO LICENSE NEEDED

By Peddlers, According to the Chester Mayor's Decision.

The two rug peddlers, who were arraigned before Mayor Dunn yesterday for selling without a license, were released by the mayor, who stated that he did not believe the ordinance referring to the matter would stand the test of a higher court, and consequently he would not enforce it. The men did not produce any state license and did not deny that they were peddling without a license. They said they would fight the town in a higher court and the mayor ruled in their favor.

CHAPTER TWO (Continued).

"It is true," I said, "that we have not had an introduction, though we are seeing a good deal of each other's society, but it is not too late. My name is Philip Marcel."

"Why, that sounds like French, and I thought you were an American."

"Both are true. I am an American, and the name Marcel used to be French. I am of French descent partly, and I may have British blood, too, though I shall not boast of it. There are many of us in South Carolina."

"But I thought you were northern. You said you had been serving in the northern army of the rebels!"

"The patriots."

"Well, the patriots, then, under Mr. Washington."

"General Washington!"

"Well, General Washington."

"Yes, I have been serving in the northern army of the patriots under General Washington, but he has sent me south with General Greene and the others, mostly southerners themselves, to redeem this part of the country from the British raiders. But I am a South Carolinian."

She relapsed into silence again, and I imitated her example. I had enough of importance anyhow to think about without talking to a girl, an enemy, but presently I recollect.

"Pardon me," I said, "but you have forgotten something too."

"What is it?"

"You have not told me your name."

"That is true, and the introduction cannot be complete until I do."

"Certainly not."

"My name is Howard."

"Howard! What Howard?"

"Julia Howard. My father is John Sinclair Howard, Major in Tarleton's Legion. I was born in Devonshire, England, and I am here with my father, having nobody else to look after me, until such time as these rebellious colonies are put down and restored in their allegiance to their lawful sovereign, George III, King of England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland. God bless him!"

I thought that God could find something better to do than to waste his time blessing King George, a fat German blockhead, but I kept the thought to myself just then.

"Then, mark my words, Miss Julia Howard of Devonshire, England," I said, "you have come here to stay."

"I don't believe it."

"It is a prediction; it will come true."

Her look was full of disbelief, and we relapsed into silence again. The shadows grew in the sky. The sun blazed like fire, and my old trouble about the future came back.

The horses ceased to pant and walked now with springy steps, their weariness gone. Old Put thrust his nose under my arm and whinnied gently. He was talking in the language that we two understood. I rubbed his soft nose.

"Yes, old fellow," I said to him, "you have done your duty well, as you always do. We'll stop soon, and then I'll find you something to eat."

He whinnied again and rubbed his nose on my sleeve, for he understood.

"He looks like a good horse," said the girl.

"Never better," I replied and with emphasis.

"I like a good horse," she said.

"So do I. That's the reason I'm so fond of Old Put."

"I wonder if he would be as friendly with me?"

"I don't know. He usually likes old friends best, but still Old Put is a horse of fine taste."

Her evident admiration of Old Put appealed to me, and I thought I would give her the little compliment. Women like such things, and again I felt as if I could afford to be generous.

She put her hand upon his nose and stroked it gently. It was a white, well shaped hand, with pretty tapering fingers. Old Put must have adored it. He assisted in the rubbing task, swaying his nose gently to and fro, and he whinnied once softly as he did when he was talking to me. He seemed to have forgotten the blow she had given him.

"See," she said triumphantly. "He has found a new friend, a good friend, and he knows it. He is almost as fond of me as he is of you."

I was surprised, greatly surprised. Heretofore Old Put had always proved himself to be an excellent judge of character, and now he was putting his trust in this English girl, who had shown herself to be unworthy of any trust whatever. Poor Old Put! Another masculine dupe! He was growing old; he was falling into his dotage. I felt a certain sadness at these signs of mental decay in my faithful horse. But they marched on, his silky nose pressed closely against her arm, and meanwhile the sun was sinking and the shadows were deepening and lengthening.

"I do not think it is necessary for us to walk any more," I said. "The horses are now thoroughly rested from their race and are willing to do their part, which is to carry us."

She looked at her ugly brown hack in some dismay.

"He's such a rough traveler I believe I'd rather walk," she said.

He certainly had a most irregular, jumping kind of gait, which would make him an unpleasant mount for anybody, but there seemed to be no recourse. Horses were not running loose around us for me to catch.

"But we can't help it," I said. "We can ride slowly, in a walk. If he misbehaves, use that switch you have picked up."

She walked steadily on.

"Now, if he were like this one," she said, stroking Old Put's nose, "I would glad to ride again."

"Suppose I change the saddles, then," I said, "and let you ride Old Put?"

It was a great concession for me to make, but her appreciation of my horse had touched me for the moment.

"Do you think he would let me?" she said, looking at Old Put doubtfully and timidly.

All right; that suited me. I did not wish to talk to her. She used words only to inveigle me into some incautious mood. But it was necessary for me to tell her to dismount in order that I might change saddles again, as I did not intend to give her another such opportunity. I did not offer to assist her, having had enough of that, but stood beside the brown hack, watching her with a look that was now strictly military.

No man except myself has ridden him in years," I said. "Perhaps no woman has ever ridden him at all, but that is no reason why one should not ride him now."

"But I am afraid," she protested again in timid fashion. All her courage seemed to have gone. Again I say you have only to be stern with a woman to keep her at your feet.

"Nonsense!" I said, a little roughly. "We'll stop talking about this and do it at once."

I halted the horses and changed the saddles, while she looked doubtfully on. Old Put submitted like an angel, and I drew the girth tight. Then I said:

"Now, if you would know what a real saddle horse is, Miss Howard, just jump up there."

"Will you help me?"

Another proof of her subdued condition!

I held out my hand in most gallant fashion. She leaned on it for a moment to give herself a support and sprang into the saddle. Then, giving Old Put a cut with the switch which she had picked up, she galloped away.

"Goodby, Mr. Marcel!" she shouted.

"I ride the better horses now."

She turned Old Put's nose to the southwest, and away she went at the very best speed of which my good horse was capable, and that was much. Her yellow hair flew in the wind, as before, like the streamers of a defiant battle-flag, and either with or without intent the red cap she wore was set rakishly and saucily on one side of her head.

CHAPTER III.

THE MERIT OF A GOOD HORSE.

I paused, not to swear this time, but for a momentary reflection on the vanity of man and the deceitfulness of woman in taking advantage of it, and then I sprang upon the back of that old brown hack—confound him for an army mule without the ears!—and gave chase. I had no switch or whip, but I roweled him and kicked him in the sides until I frightened him into a greater speed than he or any one else believed to dwell within his long frame. He gave a wild snort, and we plunged after the fleet girl, rocking and swaying like a boat in a stormy sea, but even with such exertion he could not compare with Old Put.

Despite the anxiety of the moment, I noted his inferiority with some pride, but then I remembered how much depended upon the success of the pursuit, and I continued to urge on my own mount.

Strive and strain as we could and ride and thump as I would with all my arms and legs, we lost ground rapidly. Old Put must have adored it. He assisted in the rubbing task, swaying his nose gently to and fro, and he whinnied once softly as he did when he was talking to me. He seemed to have forgotten the blow she had given him.

"See," she said triumphantly. "He has found a new friend, a good friend, and he knows it. He is almost as fond of me as he is of you."

I was surprised, greatly surprised. Heretofore Old Put had always proved himself to be an excellent judge of character, and now he was putting his trust in this English girl, who had shown herself to be unworthy of any trust whatever. Poor Old Put! Another masculine dupe! He was growing old; he was falling into his dotage. I felt a certain sadness at these signs of mental decay in my faithful horse. But they marched on, his silky nose pressed closely against her arm, and meanwhile the sun was sinking and the shadows were deepening and lengthening.

"I do not think it is necessary for us and as Old Put's pace sank to a trot she beat him fiercely with the switch. A third whistle, and Old Put, now in perfect accord with me, stopped stock still; not only that, but he faced about and neighed joyously. The girl threw the remains of her switch upon the ground and began to cry, not pitifully, but angrily, fiercely. I rode up slowly and held out my hand to Old Put, who rubbed his nose against it. He knew his master and best friend. Never had I beaten him, and now there were stripes and welts on his side where she had pounded him with a switch, or rather stick.

"Why did you not tell me what sort of a horse he was," she cried, "and then I would not have made myself look so ridiculous, sitting here as if I had been tied and waiting for you to come up?"

"Miss Howard," said I in some astonishment, "do you expect me to show you the way to escape?"

"I do not expect anything from you, a rebel," she said. "Do not speak to me again."

All right; that suited me. I did not wish to talk to her. She used words only to inveigle me into some incautious mood. But it was necessary for me to tell her to dismount in order that I might change saddles again, as I did not intend to give her another such opportunity. I did not offer to assist her, having had enough of that, but stood beside the brown hack, watching her with a look that was now strictly military.

"Why don't you help me down?" she said angrily. "Have you no courtesy for a lady?"

"You have declined such assistance from a rebel before," I said in reply to her unexpected question.

"And I decline again. You needn't offer it," she said abruptly, springing to the ground, when I had no thought of offering it.

As soon as she was off his back Old Put showed the greatest distrust of her and aversion. He shied as far away from her as my hold on his bridle would let him, and his big, dark eyes shone with wrath. I was glad that he had come back to his senses, and he, like I, should have known her thoroughly from the first and always.

"We don't intend to be deceived by her again, do we, old comrade?" said I to him.

He nodded his head in emphatic fashion, and his big eye winked intelligently. Her eyes flashed a little, but she took no other notice.

"Look well at this lady, Put," I said. "Do you note her?"

He nodded.

"She's English, we're Americans, and therefore she's an enemy and not to be trusted. Watch her well," I continued.

He nodded violently.

"Now, Miss Howard," I said severely, "I've changed those saddles, and they are ready for our use when we need them, but meanwhile we'll walk again, as we've tired our horses out for the second time, and all your fault too."

She said nothing, but walked on in the way which I had indicated, keeping eight or ten feet from me. She had ceased to cry and had given her features a fixed and angry set.

I was troubled greatly. We had wasted so much time over her futile efforts to escape that the problem of a night's shelter had grown more difficult and pressing, and I intended that my attention should not be diverted from it again. Therefore I would take precautions. I drew from my pocket a long silk handkerchief, a trophy of the Monmouth campaign, which I had preserved with great care.

"Hold out your hands," I said.

"What would you do?" she asked, turning upon me to look for fire.

But I was firm. My experience had been too great.

"Hold out your hands," I repeated. "I intend to bind them together. You play too many tricks."

"You are not a gentleman."

"You have told me that three or four times already. It won't bear further repetition."

"I will not submit to such a thing."

"Then I will have to use force, which will make it much more unpleasant to play. Old Put and I possessed a common language in which we often talked, with perfect understanding. I put two fingers to my lips and blew between them a long, shrill whistle, which cut the air and traveled like the scream of a fife. It was a request, a command even, to him to stop and wait for me. He twisted his long neck in the manner of one listening, looking back at me to see what I meant, but he went on, though with slightly diminished speed, his manner indicating that he was uncertain what I had said.

He put her hand upon his nose and stroked it gently. It was a white, well shaped hand, with pretty tapering fingers. Old Put must have adored it. He assisted in the rubbing task, swaying his nose gently to and fro, and he whinnied once softly as he did when he was talking to me. He seemed to have forgotten the blow she had given him.

"See," she said triumphantly. "He has found a new friend, a good friend, and he knows it. He is almost as fond of me as he is of you."

"Hold out your wrists," I repeated.

"I shall not hurt you. I merely wish to keep you out of further mischief."

"I shall never forgive you," she said.

I could afford to laugh at such a threat.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

Sunday Excursion—The steamer Leroy will carry an excursion party here from Steubenville tomorrow.

Case of Diphtheria—A 4-year-old daughter of C. H. Everson, of River-view street, is suffering from the diphtheria. The house is under quarantine.

To Camp on the Tuscarawas—The Ceramic City Camping Club have decided to camp this year on the Tuscarawas river. The club will leave on July 2, and stay for two weeks.

Rinehart's Damage Suit On—The case of John Rinehart against the Pittsburgh & Cincinnati Packet Line is being heard in Justice Rose's court. Both the plaintiff and defendant have a large number of witnesses.

Had His Hand Hurt—Frank Applegate and Sam Thomas have returned from a visit at Sebring. Mr. Thomas had his right hand injured at Alliance by a man shutting the door on it and he will be unable to work for a time.

Knights to Attend Church—Hope Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will hold their memorial service at their hall tomorrow beginning at 9:45. After the ceremonies at the lodge room the order will attend church services in a body.

Attended a Wedding—L. N. Otterman, of the Diamond Hardware company, returned this morning from Youngstown, where he was present at the celebration of the wedding of his daughter, Maude. Mr. Otterman spent four days at Youngstown.

Birthday Celebration—Yesterday being the forty-eighth anniversary of Mr. M. Whitaker's birth, a large party of his friends gathered at his home last evening and assisted in the celebration of the occasion in a fitting manner. The evening was spent in conversation and general sociability.

The Cow to Come Back—Humane Officer Miller gave out the information this morning that Mrs. Gotham had determined to bring her cow home. The humane representative had been complained to concerning the treatment of the cow, and made two trips to its quarters. On both occasions he found the animal well cared for, and states that there was absolutely no cause for complaint.

CUBANS WILL ACCEPT

Conservatives Determined to Force Agreement to Platt Amendment.

ADMINISTRATION IS HOPEFUL

Cabinet Discussed Both Cuban and Philippine Affairs—Order For Civil Government in Oriental Possessions Soon to Be Promulgated.

Havana, June 8.—The Cuban constitutional convention will hold a meeting next Monday to discuss the instructions received from Washington regarding the Platt amendment. The fifteen delegates who voted in favor of the amendment have held several meetings and are unanimous in thinking that the amendment must be accepted in a manner satisfactory to the United States government; and they are determined to force the radical element to accept the amendment under threat of dissolving the convention.

The radicals strongly oppose dissolution, and some of the extremists admitted that it would be better to comply with the Washington instructions.

Washington, June 8.—The cabinet was in session over two hours discussing the Cuban and Philippine situations. A communication has been received from Governor General Wood regarding the prospect for the unconditional acceptance of the Platt amendment, but its contents are not made public. It can be stated, however, that there is a hopeful feeling in administration circles that after the first soreness wears off the convention will see the wisdom of adopting the terms of the amendment. The answer to General Wood is to be sent and the language of that communication was under discussion. Meantime the existing status in Cuba is to be maintained. No action looking to the calling of another convention is in contemplation if the present convention should decline to accede to our terms. The program looking to the establishment of civil government in the Philippines is being formulated in the shape of an order which is to be promulgated shortly. It is said that there is no definite conclusion as to whether the powers of the civil administration will be exercised under the general war powers of the president or the authority vested in him by the Spooner amendment. That, however, is considered a matter of detail. The main point is that the civil administration, which will be confined largely to the municipalities, will be vested in the head of the Taft commission and such other officials as may be designated, and that they will exercise their functions subject to the direct authority of the secretary of war, to whom all reports will be made. Civil administration under military supervision, such as is contemplated, is said not to be anomalous and the civil government in New Mexico and the southern states during the early stages of the reconstruction period are pointed to as being substantially analogous to what is proposed in the Philippines.
